SCHOLARSHIP COMPETITION FOR TRIAL TECHNIQUE. The American Law Student Association announces a competition for two scholarships in trial technique to be awarded to graduating senior law students this Spring. The trial clinics will be personally conducted by Mr. Irving Goldstein, nationally known trial expert, and Dr. Nathan Flaxman, who will present the medico-legal courses. Dr. Flaxman is Co-Editor of Medical Trial Technique Quarterly and Diplomate of the American Board of Internal Medicine. Mr. Goldstein is Editor of the Trial Lawyers Guide, Northwestern University law lecturer, Dean of the Lawyers Post Graduate Clinics, and has authored a number of books including Trial Technique, Medical Trial Technique, and Trial Practice Cases. Students who have special interest in the field of trial specialization and who wish to apply for one of the scholarships can gather the necessary information from the recent February issue of the Student Lawyer (Journal of the ALSA), or see Professor Luke Cooperrider for further details. The clinic will be held in Chicago next July, and applications close May 1.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL NEWS. On Thursday, March 3, there will be an exchange dinner with Alice Lloyd (upper-class dormitory). A sign-up list will be posted on the Lawyers Club bulletin board Monday noon. The annual Lawyers Club Spring Dance will be held on Friday, March 18, from 9 to 12. The Hugh Scott Quartet will supply the music and refreshments will be served.

The Executive Council also disclosed plans for future events. The Annual Spring Picnic will be held at Susterka Lake Park, and a Sunday afternoon Jazz Concert will be given on the Lawyers Club lawn. These events (for which the dates have not been finally decided) and others will necessitate the payment of a small assessment by the members of the Law Club. However, the financial load has been lessened by the recent levying of four $20 fines for "driving in the Law Quad" violations.
